TRIPS A-WHEEL!
Where to go and how to get there.

For all the world knows how the night's run ended!
The club house standing in single isolation on our left is Grove Estate. East Coast of University of Pennsylvania, the West Philadelphia Athletic Club, the Undine Barge Club, whose motto, "Labor iape volapula," would be most appropriate to cycling ("The labor itself is a pleasure") and the Philadelphia Exalted Club and Humane Society. LEMON HILL.

That road according to the right goes to the Lemon Hill observatory, a relic of our Centennial Exhibition, twenty years ago.
The hill itself has been noted in our local history for a considerable time. It was spoken of as the "Garden of the Queen in the present mansion on its summit was that of Robert Morris home at the time of the Revolution. It was from this house the present Elfin Park is taken, it being a long street (now Locust) we take to name of locusts. But the reason for the name is the house itself by which to purchase this country.

OUR CYCLE ROUTE NO. 16.

A CHARMING FIVE-MILE RAMBLE, ALONG THE SHELBYKILL.
The East River Drive.

Where to go in this uncertain weather on the streets of our beautiful city? Why, what's the matter with the old Fairmount Park? A little corner of it, a stretch of five or six acres along Fairmount, as far as the mouth of the Wissahickon, will fill the bill. Try

TRIBUTE TO WASHINGTON.

How to reach the Green street entrance (as well because we don't, get there by way of street, as often as you have been told in this No. Rightway, we have before us the picture of the trip a day or two after the opening figure in the history of this country. George Washington. It was 115 years last October since the following announcement appeared in London's New York Packet:

BE IT REMEMBBED THAT the 17th October, 1776, the States Congress, with above fifty thousand British troops, surrendered themselves prisoners of war to the Alliance, General George Washington, Command-in-Chief of the Allied Forces of Europe and America. La Ju. U.S.A.
